... State from the north...
... city of Mosul, a high-stakes battle to retake the militants' last major stronghold in the country.
The start of the long-awaited assault raised deep concerns for hundreds of thousands of civilians trapped in Iraq's second-largest city, with aid groups warning of a massive humanitarian crisis. Some 30,000 federal forces are leading the offensive, backed by air and ground support from a coalition of nations. The Pentagon described the assault on IS's last major stronghold.
Iraqi forces could be seen readying weapons and ammunition as columns of armoured vehicles headed towards Mosul from the town of al Shura, some 40 kilometres south of the city. The Pentagon described the operation as a "decisive move."

Taliban's new of dozens dead in

Total number of internally displaced people stands at 323,500: UN agency

LASHKAR GAB
The Taliban's latest offensives in the north and south of Afghanistan have killed dozens of people and displaced tens of thousands, a spokesman said on Monday. Militants launched a full-fledged attack on Kunduz, a city and triggering fierce fighting with Afghan forces that forced thousands of residents to flee. Last week, the militants also launched a new attack on Lashkar Gah, the besieged capital of Helmand province in the south. They killed dozens of security forces and several before being ousted when government reinforcements arrived.
"Due to hostilities in Kunduz and other areas, fighting across the country have seen a surge of internally displaced people - more than 10 percent of the year's total just one week," said a spokesman for the United Nations Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs (OCHA).
The total number of internally displaced people due to fighting since the start of the year stands at 323,500. In Helmand, which has seen some of the worst fighting since the Taliban began their insurgency against the western-backed Kabul government in 2001,
