probe into 14 Indians Paradise Leaks

torate, the RBI and the Financial Intelligence Unit will monitor the investigations of cases in the Paradise Papers. The CBDT also alerted the Income Tax Department's investigation units for immediate appropriate action. The leaks set off political ripples, with the main Opposition, the Congress, demanding that the Centre order an investigation. The party said the Paradise Papers proved that Prime Minister Narendra Modi's "so-called fight" against black money and corruption remains a "complete flop." With 714 Indian names, mostly corporate entities, figuring in the data leaks mainly from two firms — Bahamas's law firm Appleby and Singapore's family-owned trust company Asiatici — Indian tax authorities will have to plumb deep into the offshore structures and initiate action against those involved in any impropriety.
