Future of law
'No justice in ha'

Barrister calls for better case management

HASSAN NAQVI

The future of laws depends on political struggle and the society. Response to political challenges greatly affects the legal landscape," said Barrister Fawaz Chaudhry on Saturday.

He was addressing the Future of Law Conference arranged by the Law Review Society of the Institute of Legal Studies.

Chaudhry said if the legal fraternity did not respond to the challenges faced by Pakistan, it could lead to a complete collapse of the society.

Commenting on laws based on Sharia, he said the problem lay in its interpretation. He said a conservative approach to interpretation of old Sharia law tended to leave little room for democratic rights, especially for the weaker sections of a society.

Chaudhry said, "The delay in justice delivery is a well defined" conventional ignores the fact that justice delivered is justice misused."

"We need to create a system where delays are not a hindrance without effecting due process. This cannot be done by legislation but by better case management," he said.

"The future of law and lawyers depends whether we can overcome and win the war on Talibanisation and terrorism. Social impact of this war is huge," he said.

He said civil society in Pakistan had been threatened.

"Unless Pakistan's political leadership takes a stand

Epidemic concern
Woman dies of swine flu, two test positive

OWAIS JAFRI

A woman who had been suffering from swine flu died in Multan on Friday.

Aftab Rehman of the District Epidemic Control Committee said the deceased, Humaira, 45, a resident of Daulat Gate Colony, was being treated at Nishtar Hospital.

He said Humaira's sister, Nasreen, 50, was also suffering from the disease, according to an initial report. Rehman said Chulam Sakina, 65, a resident of Dera Ghazi Khan and Mehmoodul Hassan, a resident of Khanewal, had also been admitted to Nishtar Hospital after they showing swine flu symptoms.

Nishtar Hospital Medical Superintendent Ashiq Malik said patients displaying symptoms of swine flu were being treated at a separate ward.

"10 patients have been admitted in seven days," he said. Executive District Officer (Health) Iftikhar Qureshi on Thursday appointed Dr Mazharul Khaliq the focal person for admitting people with swine flu symptoms to Nishtar Hospital.

Khaliq said 30-year-old Farah, a resident of Taunsa, was the first patient who tested positive for swine flu after she was brought to Nishtar Hospital on Tuesday. "Her condition is critical... a doctor treating her had also tested positive later... his condition is stable," he said.

He said the paramedical staff at the hospital was under observation and their blood samples had been sent to the National Institute of Health, Islamabad.

"According to an initial enquiry by the Health Department the swine flu virus might have been brought by birds from Siberia," EDO (Health) Iftikhar Qureshi said.

He said three teams constituted by the Livestock Department had inspected poultry farms in the area to mitigate the threat of swine flu spread.

He said the Livestock Department teams had started sending samples from the poultry farms for lab tests. "We have issued an advisory to the citizens, asking them not to keep birds like parrots at their homes. Poultry farm owners are also asked to adopt all preventive measures," he added. The health executive district officer said the Communicable Disease Department Additional Director Jaffar Ilyas and WHC teams had also arrived in Multan after the chief minister took notice of the matter.

He said swine flu symptoms include high fever, cough and nasal congestion. "The symptoms may worsen if untreated," he said.
