Sri Lanka nixes Strauss-Kahn deal after paying $750,000

COLOMBO (AP) Sri Lanka's new government Thursday said it was cutting ties with sex scandal plagued ex-IMF chief Dominique Strauss-Kahn after paying him $750,000 for being an advisor to attract foreign investment. Spokesman Rajitha Senarathne said the cabinet had decided to terminate the services of the 65-year-old economist, who is now on trial in France, accused of pimping. "The Central Bank of Sri Lanka had hired LSK and Partners," headed by Strauss-Kahn, without the proper authority to do so, Senarathne told reporters. He said $750,000 had been paid to Strauss-Kahn's LSK and partners, but it was not clear what work he had carried out, or if any more money was owed. "Our (new) government does not feel it necessary to get his services."
