1 gnash my teeth whenever I hear frequent references to "these people", and their relaxed approach to work. I am tempted to tell them to go back home if they are so unhappy in this island paradise. But the attraction of cheap staff, wonderful weather and lovely scenery keeps these foreigners from departing. This form of cultural arrogance makes Westerners question China's desire to come a global presence: clearly, there is envy at work here that translates into an active US-led policy to isolate China.

try sums. The weakening of the dinar on the black market has fuelled inflation that has impoverished wage-earners and enriched speculators.

A UN-brokered unity deal concluded in 2015 failed to heal the country's divisions. The government it parachuted into Tripoli, led by Fayez al-Sarraj, struggled to impose its authority over armed factions and the administration in the east. A new UN envoy appointed in June, Ghassan Salame, unveiled a revised plan, but the Dec 17 expiry of Sarraj's mandate came and went without a final deal.

Identified as the family spokesman told the Egypt Today into this murky political landscape wades Seif. Nothing has been heard from him directly, but a man identified as the family spokesman told the Egypt Today commerce in Tripoli. "Libyans now live in poverty. The banks are empty. People are unable to buy medicine, food or anything. There are gasoline shortages, electricity failures, water disruptions and general insecurity."

On the street, it is local militia and black-market kingpins who hold sway. That's pushing Libyans to contemplate once-unimaginable choices. "Seif would be the right choice if he'd concentrate on security, peace and national reconciliation," said Ahmed Wajej, a municipal worker in Tripoli. "Libyans hate all the political faces that are now on the scene. They want new faces that respect the will of the people and results of elections."

مرتا سے انوکھے سٹوڈنٹوں کی صورت میں جاری ہے۔ جس میں نئے سال کا آغاز ہو سکے۔ جس طرح شہر الاؤنس اور سہولتیں عمل کے کی اجراء کیا جائے۔ اساتذہ کرام کے اجلاس پر فیصلہ کیا گیا کہ عدالتی کارروائی پر عمل ہو۔ آئندہ کرام کی شہر جات سے سہولتیں یا تھوڑا ہونے کی سہولتیں ہوں گی۔
