BRUSSELS
The European Union significantly extended its sanctions against Iran on Monday, reflecting mounting frustration over a lack of progress in nuclear talks with Tehran.

EU foreign ministers agreed at a meeting in Brussels to add more than 100 new entities to a list of companies and people affected by EU sanctions, designed to put economic pressure on Tehran to abandon its atomic programme, EU diplomats said.

The measures, asset freezes and visa bans, add to a range of financial and trade sanctions the EU's 27 governments have already imposed on Tehran.

"The Council adopted legislation today to strengthen the restrictive measures imposed on Iran owing to concerns about its nuclear programme," the ministers said in a statement.

declared civilian nuclear energy programme, but Tehran says it needs nuclear power to meet growing domestic demand for electricity.

Talks with Iran on suspending the nuclear programme in return for trade and technology have ground to a halt, with the last meeting in Istanbul in January failing to yield results.

The EU's foreign policy chief, Catherine Ashton, expressed concern at the lack of progress earlier this month, saying messages she was receiving from Tehran about future meetings were disappointing.

"I do urge Iran to think again and to consider coming back to the table ... But from the letters that I've received, I don't see that at the present time," Ashton said at the time.

Range of targets
EU diplomats said on Monday's sanctions list included German-based EIH bank, which specialises in business in Iran, as well as shipping and engineering companies and organisations owned and controlled by the Iranian Revolutionary Guard.

Details of who is affected will be published on Tuesday. The United States has already banned business with EIH (Europaisch-Iranische Handelsbank, or European-Iranian Trade Bank), because of concerns that it finances companies involved in Iran's nuclear programme.

Commenting on the EU decision, Washington said world powers would continue to target Iran with sanctions as long as Tehran continued its enrichment programme. AGENCIES

KHARTOUM Sudan's flashpoint town of Abyei was ablaze on Monday with gunmen looting properties after its capture by northern troops, the United Nations said after demanding Khartoum pull out its forces.

"The UN Mission in Sudan, or UNMIS, warned Khartoum it was responsible for law and order amid reports thousands of civilians were fleeing southwards after northern Sudan Armed Forces troops and tanks overran the border town on Saturday. "UNMIS strongly condemns the burning and looting currently being perpetrated by armed elements in Abyei town," it said in a statement.

"The Sudan Armed Forces are responsible for maintaining law and order in the areas they control," it added AFP

ENHANCED DEFENCE Iran's elite unit given ballistic missile

TEHRAN Iran has equipped its elite Revolutionary Guards with a new surface-to-surface ballistic missile, the Qiam-1, which was built locally and test-fired in August, Iranian media reported on Monday. "Mass production of the Qiam (Rising) missile, the first locally built missile with no fins, shows Iran's self-sufficiency in manufacturing different kinds of missiles," the hardline Kayhan daily quoted Defence Minister Ahmad Vahidi as saying. Vahidi said the indigenous manufacturing of the missile is "a disgrace to those who claim that Iran is cooperating with other nations" to make such missiles. AFP

EMBASSY PLOTTAGE Saleh apologises

DUBAI President Ali Abdullah Saleh apologised to the UN Arab Emirates on Monday after gunmen loyal to Saleh surrounded the UAE embassy in Sanaa during diplomatic talks a day earlier, the UAE state news agency said.
US, European and Gulf ambassadors stranded at the embassy during the talks had been lifted out by helicopter people," she added. GCC ministers announced at a meeting in Riyadh that they suspended their media efforts, although they also pressed hope that Saleh might sign up to the deal.
State television aired 1
